Hope To Find Signature

The examination was made in an effort to determine whether the portrait is one of several of Washington painted by the famous American artist Gilbert Stuart.
Through the use of the X-ray it was hoped that the signature of the artist could be discerned.Dr. Smith explained that there is a certain amount of lead in paints and that the amount of the metal in paint used by the artist when making his signature might cast a readable shadow on an X-ray picture of the small painting made in Marion yesterday.Results of the X-ray examination believed to be the first time this development of science ever was used in Marion in an effort to establish the authenticity of a painting will no longer be known for

Miss Barrymore Brings "Real Theater" To City

Appearance of Noted Star of Stage Marks Season Opening, "Blossom Time" Next.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

Visiting royalty in the person of Ethel Barrymore queen of the theaters' royal family opened Marion's theatrical season last night at the Palace theater with the flourish and fanfare attendant to an auspicious occasion.

Playing vividly the role of Constance Middleton, the heroine of Somerset Maugham's smart comedy, "The Constant Wife," Miss Barrymore provided a treat for the approximately 500 theatergoers of Marion and vicinity who have had to theater in their mind in almost a decade.

Bringing a star of the Parry more cult to Marion was an experiment of the theater management to discover whether a legitimate show can become a permanent part of Marion's entertainment program during the winter months. In a for her effort to determine the type of stock to which will draw the largest audience the musical "Platos Blue" will be brought to the

The Milton Berle-Lila Gray-Chillie road show company of "Life Begins At 40" was to have opened Marion on Nov. 7 but last night came word that the show has been taken off the road and shown cards already printed for the initial presentation went into the wastebasket.

In Ft. Wayne Today

Miss Barrymore responded to four curtain calls the hat one by herself before last night's audience would let her quit the stage and prepare to leave for Fort Wayne Ind. at 3:28 a.m. today for a performance tonight.

Tall with burnished-copper hair, beautiful hands that spoke volumes in their graceful gestures, Miss Barrymore was a veritable queen who commanded the center of attention every moment she was on the stage. To many in the audience she did not seem her except in the motion picture "Gasoline and the Girls" but who were familiar with the work of her brothers, Lionel and John, the close resemblance of the brothers and their sister was striking. The piercing eyes, the long straight nose, the curling and the hands of the three were noticeable family marks.

Sparkling with witty lines from Maugham brilliant pen, the play was a delightful telling of the story of a wife, Constance Middleton, who understands her philandering husband better for six months to keep her family and friends from telling her what she already knew and when the big scene finally comes carries it off with top honours leaving the persons involved completely fo lish and a bit scared.

Miss Barrymore in the role of Constance was particularly stunning in the second act in which the play reaches its climax. Stun him not only in "openness"—she works sweeping black satin and crepe dress, and for a few minutes a lovely black velvet pleated hat that retails off her profile beautifully—but in her third act as well. To win her husband again she enters business makes enough money to pay him for her keep for a year and announces a vacation to Italy with a man who has loved her devotedly the 15 years she has been married. Leading her husband on, infatuating him with her ready-to-turn-the-tables on him and enjoy a bit of thrill during herself the rouges in him the ardor she has longed for in the last 10 years of their married life and leaves on the harrowing vacation trip she had intended to take.

Adelaide Hibbard played the role of Mrs. Culver, mother of Constance. To the mother a philandering husband is something every wife should accept with as little fuss as possible.

WOMEN PARTICULARLY STRONG

The women in the supporting cast were particularly strong. Cynthia Rothorne played the part of the cut-keen sister Martha Culver. Lynn Reinholz a super attractive blond young actress who probably will be heard much of later in theater plays the role of Marie Louise Durham, the other woman and Jean Arden was Barbara Fawcett businesswoman of Constance. J. W. Austin carried the role of the philandering husband John Middleton. Peggie Malcoff was seen as Bernard Keay the returned suitor of former days. Frank Gremm played the small role of Mortimer Durham, husband of the other woman and Robert Doyle was Bentley the father who is striking. The piercing eyes, the long straight nose, the curling and the hands of the three were noticeable family marks.

All of the action takes place in the richly furnished drawing room of the Middleton home in London England. The stage was beautifully furnished with an eye to the attractiveness of the furniture as a background for the colors of the women & scenes.

JUDGE URGES LEVY RENEWAL

Hector S Young Explains Need of Three-Mill Levy in Talk Before Rotary Club

An explanation of why renewal of the three-mill city school levy is essential if Marion schools are to be maintained on a suitable scale of operations was given by Common Pleas Judge Hector S Young in a talk before the Rotary club following its weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding yesterday.

His talk included an interesting review of taxation developments in Ohio during the last 16 years. He told of conditions which existed prior to 1922 when tax-exempt subdivisions of the state were permitted to borrow for operating expenses. This situation he said was remedied by the legislature about 10 years ago when laws were passed prohibiting loans for operating purposes.

In order to obtain necessary funds the schools first asked for the extra three mill levy in 1922 and it carried by a 70 per cent vote, Judge Young said. Then as the law requires renewal every five years the levy was voted again by a large majority in 1930 and now is being submitted for another five year renewal.

The speaker also explained how changes in tax laws and property valuations in the last five years have resulted in new financial complications for the schools. He called attention to the fact that revenue has been curtailed by the new intangible tax law which has not produced as well as anticipated by lowering of the tax duplicate by 10 mill limitation on real estate taxes and by tax deferrals.

Should the three mill levy not be renewed Judge Young said it will mean a loss of $80,000 annually in school revenue. This he declared would make a nine month school term impossible.

The speaker's information regarding the school situation was drawn mainly from his experience as a school board member over a 10-year period preceding his election to the common pleas bench.

X-RAY IS EMPLOYED TO STUDY PORTRAIT

art for final judgment. Dr Dwire said he hoped in the near future to have the picture appraised by an outstanding artist regardless of the outcome of the X-ray examination.

The painting is 20 inches long and 14 inches wide. It is a head and shoulders portrait of Washington. When moving to California two years prior to his death in 1883 took the picture with him and only this year it was returned to Bucyrus by Dr Dwire.

Dr Dwire and the numerals 17 — are discernible but the exact year in which it was painted cannot be determined with the naked eye.

Dr Dwire said Stuart is believed to have painted some portraits of Washington and that not all of them are accounted for.

In a book "American Pictures and Their Painters" written by Mrs Lorinda Marion Bryant and published by the John Lane Co of New York Miss Bryant states that Stuart in one of his own notations reported he made only three portraits of Washington from life although he later made several copies of these.

The tell of one being placed in the Athenaeum museum in Boston and the other having been purchased by a Boston man and states through other cities

Stuart, originally a Welshman, then artist himself, says in a note at the foot of a list of names including George Washington, I found this asking me when he would do for his portrait, which is now owned by Samuel Williams (the Marquis of Lansdowne) of London. I have thought it proper that it should be his especially as he owns the only original painting I ever made of Washington except one I own myself. I paint a third but rubbed it out.

Signed G. Stuart.

Mrs Bryant adds of course Stuart made many pictures of the Washington head, but Washington sat only three times to the great artist. The portrait Stuart owned was sold by the artist's widow to the Washington Association and in 1881 was presented to the Boston Athenaeum hence the name. It is simply loaned to the museum. The Washington portrait for Samuel Williams referred to in Stuart's letter was sent to England and is known as the Lansdowne Washington. It is a full length figure though Washington sat for the head only.

Stuart the book states was born in 1755 and died in 1825.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS A.F.O.L. IN CONFLICT OVER UNION TYPES

The Italian army will advance naked.

They may not even reach stalemate.

Are you looking for a big battle sometime soon?

Yes. A large part of the population is still in the hill villages. This street which was once a river of people is now deserted.

Italian civil administrators of Adwa, however, insisted that virtually all the native population had returned here. Near Adwa, 2,000 men were working on the road.

I am the first heavy artillery batteries going over the mountains toward Adwa — heavy pieces which could have destroyed this city had they been brought into it.

Their use was not necessary.

RELIEF EXTENSION LIKELY IN COUNTY

According to a notice from the tax commission which informed commissioners Marion county had right to issue bonds up to $67,700 under section two of house bill No. 50.

If Marion county shares in direct relief funds throughout November it will not be necessary to dip into the $67,700 fund to be provided by the poor relief bonds until after Dec. 1.

Allotment Reduced

Since Marion county and Ohio are far behind in their WPA program it is believed both the county and state will be included in the federal relief budget for November. News dispatches said the relief allotments in the nation next month probably would total $30,000,000 or slightly less than half the total allotment for October.

Stillman estimated that nearly 200,000 families of employees would still require care on Nov. 1. There are now 135 employables of Marion county relief rolls together with 700 unemployed persons.

Commenting on the observation of former Sen. Henry Allen of Indiana after an interview with Mussolini that Il Duce apparently feels England means war, Italian press sources said Italy was ready for such an eventuality.

HIS EXCELLENCY

One of a series of Associated Press sketches telling about the men who occupy the governors' chairs in the various states.

CLYDE TINGLEY

THE GOVERNOR OF NEW MEXICO

Clyde Tingley, governor of New Mexico, guards his age more closely than an old maid (he's in the fifties), says "ain't" punctuates his remarks with occasional profanity and works harder than any of his employees. . . . For a quarter of a century Tingley has been in politics. . . . He was first a political employee of Albuquerque, then councilman and then mayor term after term. . . . Tingley never forgets an enemy or friend.

Though childless, children are his hobby. Schools, playgrounds and parks are always foremost in his mind. . . . The former Toledo, O., machinist owns farmland in Ohio. . . . He discusses dams, hospitals, schools, state finance, relief, with a knowledge acquired from personal contact. . . . Overweight, the governor has not been in good health since his inauguration. . . . He still likes to attack enormous meals and munches between times. This summer he personally directed a hunt for a missing Illinois tourist traveling hundreds of miles and going three nights without sleep.

Ohio Cities Prepare to Go to Polls

This is another in a series on interesting election campaigns.

By The Associated Press
LIMA, O., Oct. 16—Lima's non-partisan mayoralty election will find Mayor A. L. McBeth pitted against William Murphy, father of 11 children.

Metheny, 51, is a Republican and a graduate in civil engineering of Denison university. Before becoming mayor, he served as director of safety and service and formerly was in the city engineering department. He also has been identified with work on many construction projects throughout the state.

Murphy, 36, and a Democrat, for the last 25 years has been foreman of the Lima Locomotive works. He was elected to city council in 1933, the first and only public office he ever held. Both men are active in city, church and fraternal affairs.

30 BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS FIND HOME AT Y. M. C. A.

As Y M C A workers prepared to open their drive for funds next Monday night officials of the organization have already enumerated various activities now under way or the sponsorship of the Y that will share in the $50,000 goal set for the campaign.

Of major importance in the work of the organization in Marion is the varied program designed for the boys and girls of the city, clubs pointed out. Approximately 30 clubs are now organized under the leadership of Secretary Bert Hale who is assisted by Elmer Shire and Clarence Lenz.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

The Eye

No other organ of the body is more abused and more neglected than the eye. Sometimes we take it for granted that the construction and machinery of this organ are perfect and all its parts in operation. We regard the eye as an adjustable tool, possible demand that it is unnecessary to give it thought. We forget all about our eyes until we have an actual disease with redness and pain, striking together at the site of some other really uncomfortable symptom. We go about our affairs in delightful ignorance that there may be something wrong with the organ of vision.

Many foolish persons suffer from myopia fully realizing that glasses are necessary. Others provide themselves with spectacles but fail to wear them when they are most needed. Many a person walks around with glasses in his pocket when in reality he should be wearing them every minute.

When the age for wearing glasses arrives there will be found a need to change the lenses from time to time. On account of the constant changes in the focusing power it is important that the eyes be tested pretty regularly. Wearing the same lenses for a long period of years may result in actually weakening the eyes with actual damage to the sight. Dear in mind too that is only by a careful test on the part of one who has scientific training that the true condition of your eyes can be determined.

Periodical general physical examinations are particularly valuable to patients past fifty. Regular eye examinations are essential in every age group.

Many a child is counted stupid in school because he has uncorrected eyes trouble and cannot study as the normal child does. Failure to progress in school or college is frequently the result of uncorrected eyesight. Unfortunate alleged laziness unwillingness to work at tasks requiring good eyesight and imprudent social maladjustments are all too many times the direct effect of poor eyesight.

Many children require glasses yet very naturally young mothers object to their being worn. The parent fears they detract from the appearance of the child. This is foolish we must admit but it is perfectly human. It may be an encouragement to learn that many children who wear glasses in early childhood outgrow their defect. The sight may be improved that glasses are no longer required. It is amazing what relief follows the correction of eyesight. As if by magic all the discomfort disappears.

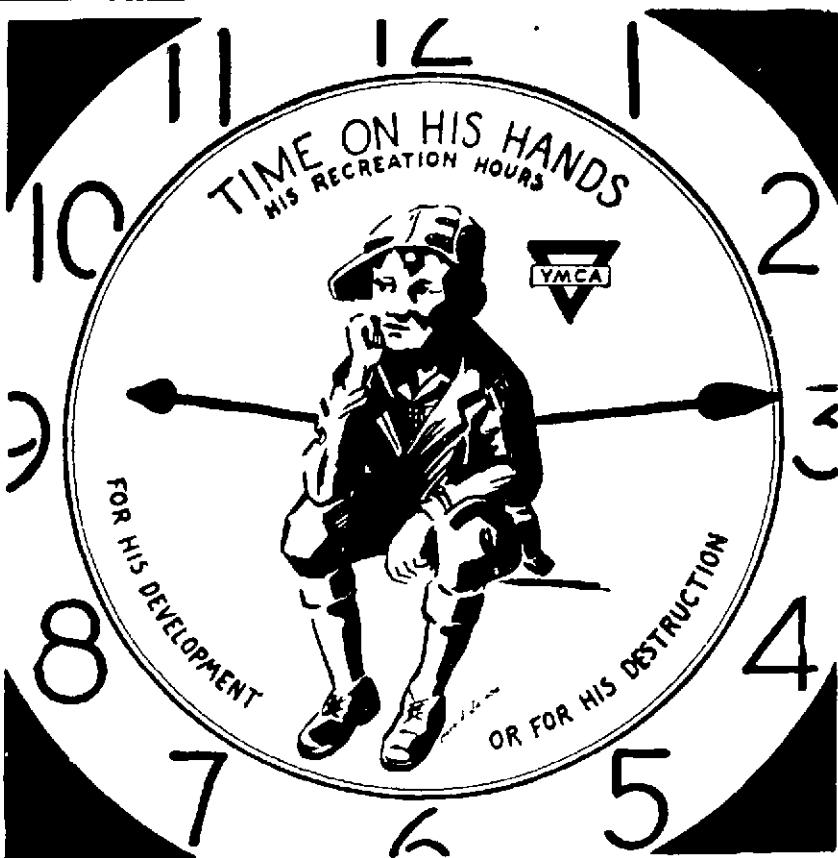

The practical application of the science of optics has promised as much the welfare of the human family as any other factor of which I have knowledge. I think great credit should be given all those engaged in the correction of eyesights.

If your eyes distress you or if you have uncomfortable sensations which have remained in spite of all efforts to remove them I ask that you have your eyes tested. Find out if the vision which you flatter yourself is sound. It is really possible by reason of constant strain. The small sum involved in an examination of the eyes and the correction of their sight if they exist will repay you a thousandfold. It will give you increased efficiency and multiplied happiness.

HONEYMOONERS HIT TROUBLE AT CANYON

Superintendent of Autoway Camp Telts Amusing Stories

By International News Service
GRAND CANYON, Ariz.—In these modern times honeymooners are still funny people. M. H. Tillotson, superintendent of the Grand Canyon National Park has found.

Whether it's because the canyon is one of the most awesome sights

in the world or whether it's love

Tillotson isn't certain but anyway

among the 10,000 honeymooners who passed through the park last summer this happened.

One groom perhaps blinded by love or the sun drove his coupe off the brink of the canyon and would have plunged straight for the Colorado River a mile below if a tree hadn't caught the car. Both he and his wife escaped unharmed.

One bride walked off the brink

but was saved by a ledge a few feet below.

One couple was lost for a day

within a few steps of a main highway.

One sweetheart fainted when she first saw the chasm and was saved only by the strong arms of her fiance.

But the politicians and the college professors are the ones who always stumble over a root or twig as they stand on the edge of the canyon and as Tillotson reminds them the forces bring is about the poorest place in the nation for stumbling.

The trophy for misfortune though goes to an eastern politician who calmly stepped into the canyon

while gazing at the wonders through binoculars. Rangers had to throw him ropes to haul him back to safety after he had stayed further downstream through grabbing a shrub a 200 feet down.

DR. E. L. BRADY HEADS HEALTH SEAL SALE

Plans Laid for Annual County Campaign Against Tuberculosis.

The selection of Dr. E. L. Brady, president of the Marion County Anti-Tuberculosis League, as chairman of the Christmas Seal sale in Marion county was announced today by the Ohio Public Health association.

Dr. George Ulah has been named to serve as seal sale director and Mrs. Walter Miles as executive secretary.

The county organization's program for the coming year includes nursing service and a tuberculosis educational program. The goal, the purpose of which is to raise funds for carrying on the battle against tuberculosis, is to extend from Thanksgiving until Christmas.

According to Dr. E. R. Hall, president of the Ohio Public Health association, tuberculosis continues to be an extremely important health problem in spite of the decline in the tuberculosis death rate in Ohio from 150.7 per 100,000 population in 1910 to 46.9 per 100,000 population in 1934. It is still the leading cause of death in early adult life, between the ages of 15 and 45, he said.

Winners from the various churches will meet for a county contest with a silver medal as the award for the winner. County winners will meet later in a congressional district gold medal contest and finally the district winners will compete for college scholarships and for cash prizes totaling $200 in a state competition.

The Map of Europe.

The return of Austria and Hungary last week to join other members of the League of Nations in voting for sanctions against Italy brought many a map of Europe out on the living room table for speculation. What might it mean?

Austria ever since the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss and the threatened crystallization of the Nazi influence in Austrian politics has been regarded as a natural dependent on Italy whose northern border is Austria's southern border.

Hungary surrounded by France's restless proteges of the little entente has taken its stand with Austria in the present instance. Thus Italy's sphere of friendship seems to extend at least as far north as the southern boundary of Germany and as far east as Rumania.

The real question and the greatest uncertainty is Germany which has withdrawn from the League of Nations. If no new students of European balances are beginning to believe the next alignment will throw the fascist governments against the democratic governments Germany, Austria, Hungary and Italy might be the new bloc of central European powers.

Germany and Italy have seemed to be working at cross purposes in the case of Austria, sandwiched between them but their political philosophies are significantly similar. Adolf Hitler is Benito Mussolini's pupil. Premier Mussolini is Chancellor Hitler's teacher. Perhaps the difference between a black shirt and a brown shirt isn't consequential enough to prevent an alliance. Perhaps Italy's well advertised friendship for France will be worth less in the long run than its agreement with Germany on the supremacy of the state and the right of ambitious governments to take the territory they need for their purposes. Whatever the final outcome it is plain that Europe once more is taking sides.

All's Well.

It seemed for a few days as though October might be different this year. But the danger has vanished.

The weather turned mild last Saturday. The leaves after being dashed by winds and cold rains now fluttering to the ground quietly in the colorful pageantry which is autumn's most enjoyable and at the same time its grandest spectacle.

Even football, which threatened on its first full Saturday to become game in which everything would turn out as sports experts said it would has come back to normal. Last Saturday literally gallons of dope were spilled. Purple sisters became rampaging Amazons and a few Amazons took to their beds unexpectedly.

So perhaps it will be pretty decent fall after all. There will be fragrant days starting with mighty mornings and ending with bright frosty nights. There will be days when the temperature will waver between coolness demanding a fire in the furnace and chill demanding only a fire in the fireplace.

There will be painted landscapes and piles of scarlet and golden leaves. There will be afternoons when one might be fooled into thinking it was summer if he couldn't see and smell the autumn. There will be nights when even dull imaginations can see witches riding on broom sticks across a full moon. All's well.

Dubious Move.

It is by no means certain that organized labor leaders who favor close alignment with politicians seeking change in the federal Constitution represent more than an unimportant minority within the American Federation of Labor. It is strange however, that any organized labor support should be given a movement to increase the federal government's authority over industry.

Some farsighted labor leaders who have tried to determine their proper position with regard to broadening federal control of industry and business have concluded that if government obtains the right to rule over industry it will claim the right to rule over labor. Though aware of the reasons why organized labor favors the Roosevelt administration and though appreciative of labor's belief that unified national regulation of industry would be in its favor, a handful of leaders who look beyond the immediate present are apprehensive of the ultimate effect of a broadened federal control.

They regard it as part of the trend toward unification of the state which has destroyed individual rights in other countries. Labor must have governmental tolerance governmental support or both before it can be organized successfully. But to remain organized successfully it must have control of its own politics. The current Hitler fight against the company union is to prevent the employee from controlling labor policies. If the politician were to attempt to control labor policies, another fight would be necessary.

These are the reasons a few labor leaders prefer to keep the labor movement out of any attempt to amend the Constitution for the purpose of giving more authority over industry to the federal government. They cannot be convinced that organized labor has anything to gain in the long run from a wider federal authority.

The possibility that an unfriendly federal administration might use laws made in a spirit of friendship for unfriendly purposes is particularly frightening to the frightened leaders who are trying to look beyond the present into the future.

Let's Go For a Ride.

Museo of the automobile in 1924 cost the United States $3,000,000 besides hundreds of millions of dollars. The death rate from auto accidents reached a new high mark of 280 per 100,000. That meant that among Americans who habitually drive or ride in automobiles—perhaps 50 per cent of the total population—one person out of every 1,000 persons was killed during the year. A town of 10,000 persons could expect at least six deaths. A town of 100,000 could expect 60 deaths.

If the town happened to be located in Ohio the death rate from auto accidents was 20 per cent greater than the national average. Ohio stood 37th among all the 48 states from the standpoint of safety. If this state's auto death rate had prevailed for the entire country there would have been approximately 43,000 deaths instead of almost 10,000 less than that.

On the now busy Flushing corner a one armed shoe shiner does the best busi ness among his guild. His lightning dexterously unworking trolley with his teeth, slipping rings and circling on a running conversation is a show in itself. He claims to have been born in Ethiopia and lost his arm from infection following a camel bite. True or not a good story from a good locale at the moment.

Arrangement in black and white. A coal block carrier in Harlem hauling a ticket to a white motorist who is born an Alabama Negro plate.

Incredibly. Ethiopia's bottom ledge sugar hill received its racial impetus being the scene of the wounding of Joe Louis. There is rivalry between the Hill and Sylvester Row where Lorenzo Mills and Paul Robeson used to live to the southwest. When Louie Ellington and Cab Calloway, the jazz conductors, took apartments on Madison Avenue or Eugene Hill, it matched that dirty status like but with Louis taking his pride there the epithet of "Ethiopian" was complete. Louis by the short might of his prowess becoming immediately the colored social leader in both New York and Chicago. And of course Louis' birth made a hit with almost everybody riding home from the fight on a street car.

Psychiatrist do not recommend the racy story and it is a novel for mental relaxation for the high minded. I have a tame friend who just came from one. He wants to get a copy of "Ethiopia" home. And read it during a jet of the Jimmies. The reader will become a general prescription.

What enables the Italians and Ethiopians thus to accomplish more murder in the headlines than on the battle field is that they both control inside avenues of information from the wilderness world in which they are said to be fighting their battles while reaching for the outside world.

The adviser which experts here give us to the relative merits of confining war information is this:

"American correspondents at the front on both sides are sending the most authentic information available, they may be delayed by transmission difficulties and subjected to censorship but should be trusted as against stories from any other sources. They will usually have the right story a day or two late."

Stories from Addis Ababa concerning happenings at the front should be subjected to microscopic inspection.

News from Rome about developments at the front are hardly worth reading as we also the stories written by European correspondents published in London papers and relayed here. These are generally overflavored with their own particular political bias.

They cite experiences with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Co.—a little R.F.C. subsidiary created to make mortgage loans at a time when nobody else would touch them with a 10 foot pole. Since the mortgage market loosened up a bit they find they can get more liberal valuations at the same interest from insurance companies than they can from Jones. Moreover the latter insists in the right to a voice in the management of mortgaged properties to an extent private lenders never dreamt of. So the R.F.C. doesn't get much business which is okay with its boss. He has plenty of time to keep him busy.

Keen New York observers see the future value of New York Central and other railroads assuming the government doesn't take them over. Their owners in their possession of private rights of way and valuable real estate terminals etc. Central's property is to be sold to private lenders.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK Oct 16—They are ready fanning the hot red embers of Broadway in hope of a flame that will again become The Great Blaze. Men and women to whom the street means a hell will tell you the depths have been touched and I had way in the upturns.

They prefer to believe it will again be come the boisterous roar of Broadway the light hearted stretch or a definite part of the national consciousness—a playground with the finest of cafe theaters and airy brother relaxations. That is their chant.

But such optimism is not stable save for spots such as enlivened by the Broadway map. The fact is that Broadway has declined to a nickel penny twodrillness with all the brightness preceding gone. It must be cleaned of carnival tempo and honky tonk blarney.

It has no class restaurants such as Reitor, Shanks and Churchill. Gone are such theaters as the Criterion, Globe and Gaely as once flourished. No more hotels like the Knickerbocker or long night clubs like the Plaza. Only the shell remains.

Perhaps Broadway's decadence is largely due to the process of reasoning that Wilson Mizner used to delight in telling. One of his hard boiled cronies once observed with great earnestness: "That's me I always try to deal legitimate especially at first."

A few hardy gypsies—under my window now—are I fit despite promises of banishment by a miserly decree some time ago. To me, from the outside the barrel organ is a big city on the two wheels of Victoria that circle the park. There is a blinding of old world industry and peasant obesity about the impresarios—one riding in tux and the other boxcox scrapping and railing for taney color. It might not be nude but it beats most of the street cacophony about which nothing is ever done—ever talk.

On the now busy Flushing corner a one armed shoe shiner does the best busi ness among his guild. His lightning dexterously unworking trolley with his teeth, slipping rings and circling on a running conversation is a show in itself. He claims to have been born in Ethiopia and lost his arm from infection following a camel bite. True or not a good story from a good locale at the moment.

Just when a columnist feels he might be making the girlie he is likely to receive a Twitter letter such as this that comes up out of nowhere: "I am a Negro and I am a Communist." A sort of rebuke spewed of nuttily carbonated ectoplasm.

PROFIT TAKING WELL ABSORBED

Rails and Scattered Specialties Stage Strong Rally To Hit New Highs.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Heavy profit taking put only a temporary dent in today's stock market as the rails and scattered specialties got behind the list with strong support.

The flood of offerings of recent industrial climbers at the opening again caused the ticker tape to drop behind floor transactions. Selling dried up later, however, and early declines of 1 to 3 points were pared or cancelled. Despite the irregularity, a number of new highs for the year were scored.

Setbacks in conspicuous leaders were attributed almost wholly to technical influences. There was said to have been a little more short selling than usual. General economic improvement was seen as the basic market influence and bullet forecasts predominated in the financial sector. War news failed to disturb particularly.

Gains were a bit backward, but cotton firms, rail bonds took a turn for the better. Foreign exchanges were quiet.

Shares of Union Pacific rallied 4 points and Pullman, Sibley May-Stern and Celanese were up 2 each. Gainers of fractions to 20 points or so included New York Central, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Auburn, Bendix, Murray Corp., American Can, Eastman Kodak, Industrial Rayon, Schenley, Western Union, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas. Pressure on Chrysler was pronounced, but this favorite came back smartly to regain most of its early loss. Case dropped a point.

The flurry in carrier equities was attributed to various factors. Recent selling of Union Pacific, based apparently on fears for the dividend, was reversed by reports that the road expected to earn about $3.50 for the full year and that, under the circumstances, the directors would order the regular disbursement to stockholders.

Early estimates of freight car loadings for the past week—the official figures will be published Friday—place the total at around 750,000 cars. This would be the highest aggregate since October, 1931, and would compare with 708,877 in the previous week and 635,639 in the like week of 1934.

While it was thought that the bright earnings statements of some corporations had already been discounted to a certain extent, these continued to make pleasant reading in the boardrooms. Among the leaders were: Westinghouse, third quarter, net profit of $2,567,500 or 96 cents a share, against a loss of $32,100 in the same period last year; Du Pont $1.48 a share in the September quarter against $1.24 last year; Caterpillar Tractor, 9 months, $2.28 against $1.56 in the 1934 period.
